- The challenges of being a young female business owner
- Her advice for entrepreneurs and aspiring entrepreneurs
- Her weekly column on Women Women for The Telegraph

About Emma Sinclair

Emma Sinclair is Chief Executive Officer of Target Parking. She has a background in Investment Banking having spent her formative years in mergers and acquisitions at NM Rothschild in both the UK and the USA. Latterly moving into real estate and specifically, parking, Emma is passionate about raising the quality of car park and facility management services for Target Parking's clients across the UK.

Emma also sits on various business and charity boards and has been a Governor of the Michael Faraday School in Southwark for twelve years. She is a contributor to economic, real estate and parking related journals and debates.

She has been nominated for a number of awards and appeared on industry leader lists including Property Week's 'Hot 100 under 35's', The Observer Future 500: 50 'To Watch' in the Business Category, The First Women Awards (sponsored by Lloyds TSB, CBI and Real Business Magazine) and a finalist in Property Week's Young Property Personality of the Year.
