TWF Honours the Winners of Last Night's SOPA Awards for Excellence in Reporting on Women's Issues

Dear TWF friends

The Women's Foundation congratulates the Society of Publishers in Asia on last year's successful Awards dinner which saw the launch of a new Award category for Excellence in Reporting on Women's Issues. Honouring original coverage of women in Asia - from women in politics and women's rights to violence against women, from the economic rise of women and women in the workplace to women in war, from women and religion to studies of female leadership - the new Award category recognizes high calibre reporting that explores the lives of women and the challenges they face.

TWF would like to warmly congratulate the winners in this category who are:

Group A

Award for Excellence: The Wall Street Journal Asia for "Crimes Against Women in India"
Honourable Mention: Bloomberg News for "India's Shame"

Group B

Award for Excellence: Korea Times for "Some Migrant Wives have Broken Hearts"
Honourable Mention: South China Morning Post for "China Vice"

Group C

Award for Excellence: EastWeek Magazine for "Egg Freezing Arouses Controversy on Legal and Moral Stances"
Honourable Mention: Eastweek for "The Road to Success of Three Leading Businesswomen in the Male Dominated Business World"

For more details, please go to the SOPA website: <http://www.sopawards.com/>

Warm regards

Su-Mei Thompson
CEO, The Women's Foundation
