Girls Go Tech Tutorial Video Competition

Dear TWF Friends,

One of the most effective ways to master a skill is to teach it. This is why last Friday we held the award ceremony for our GGT tutorial video competition co-organised by Bloomberg.

The competition challenged 52 secondary school girls aged 14-17 split into teams of two to develop a video tutorial focused on teaching others how to build a product or app they learned by participating in GGT as well as through their own study. Bloomberg volunteers were paired with each team to assist them with idea development and workshops around presentation skills.

Out of the 12 shortlisted teams, four received special recognition from our panel of judges for their 10-15 minute tutorial video:

- Champion: Ng Wing Chi and Chan Lok Tung, Holy Trinity College

Inspired by the popular Korean TV series – Squid Game, this tutorial focused on how to create an online version of the game 'Red light, Green light', with Scratch. The process involves game design, sound effects, visual effects, and coding.

TWF Response to the Policy Address Public Consultation

Today TWF submitted a response to the Policy Address Public Consultation, which includes a comprehensive set of recommendations to the Government to address gender inequality for the long term. Our recommendations focused on seven areas:

- Holistic approach needed to boost female workforce participation
- Increased support for women in poverty
- Greater protections and preventative measures around all forms of sexual and domestic violence
- Stronger, targeted protections for vulnerable groups of women and girls

- Tackling gender stereotypes in all spheres across the city
- Increase the availability and accessibility of gender disaggregated data
- Incorporating gender sensitivity into COVID-19 recovery plans

Given the breadth and scale of the above issues, we urge the Government to include issues of gender inequality on the Executive Council agenda or in the creation of a taskforce of individuals who can support in the inclusion and implementation of solutions for these challenges.
